THIS MORNING

I REFRAIN from a criticism of my competitor's stock, as it is beneath me. He has not ability enough to write his own advertisement without the assistance of one who suits well to go with him. A criticism of him here is out of place. But the level-headed business men of Winfisbero are too familiar with his record for me to say anything. My Competitors admits accusations, and tells you in plausible language, if the worst was to come what he would do—pay at home and let the people of the North go without.

ALASI ALASI

These words are degrading for a man of any community to express. What if some of our old, honorable houses of Winisboro should give expression to such thoughts? What if that honorable body, the General Assembly, now in session should give expression to such thoughts? I say, without fear of contradiction, if they did the credit of our State or our people would not, in ten years, extend over the borders.

BUT NO, NO,

A thinght like this never enters the mind of the good people of Winnsboro, nor the best people of State of South Carolina. Here I drop them both and seek a nobler foc.

My stock and financial standing have been slightly criticised. For information I refer any person to the Winnsboro National Bank and to the Agencies of Durn and Bradsteet. There you will find my worth financially, and my mercantile history, of which street. There you will find my worth financiaty, and my mercantene master, and a who proud;

Should I siver my connection with this community at any time, I most emphatically assure you it will not be necessary to hire expert book-keepers to examine my record, nor shall my friends be brought into play to buy up my notes and accounts at less than face ville. I regret that such articles as those published recently should go before the eyes of our good people from the pen of a MIMNAUGH, but in self-defence. When a man who does not therefore the eyes of our good people from the pen of a MIMNAUGH, but in self-defence. When a man who does not therefore and the English language and copies advertisements with these words, "No Shoddy, no Trash, or Auction Goods," I can no longer refraint I buy honest goods—I pay honest me ney. My business record and balance sheet are such that they can be published in The News and Herald, if necessary.

Very respectfully,

J. L. MIMNAUGH.
